Jozankei 定山溪

160 years since the opening of the first hot-spring bath amid a beautiful ravine in the Shikotsu-Toya National Park Approximately one hour's drive from central Sapporo. It is 160 years since the first hot-spring bath opened in 1866. Drops of water from the mountainous forests amid the abundant natural environment of the ancient volcanic belt, penetrate deep into the ground, creating hot springs warmed by the heat of the earth. Enjoy a relaxing time surrounded by the beauty of the four seasons.

Atama Daibutsu (Hill of the Buddha) 頭大佛殿

Tadao Ando designed a 40-meter tunnel leading to the rotunda, which features a water garden and a roofless, concrete hall, allowing the Buddha to be viewed against the sky. The hill changes appearance with the seasons—vibrant green in spring, a purple lavender blanket in summer, and a snow-covered, peaceful, white mound in winter. Visitors can walk through the tunnel for a dramatic reveal, write wishes on ema (wooden placards), and explore the surrounding area, which also features 33 to 40+ large-scale Moai replicas.

Hokkaido Shrine 北海道神宮

Next to the lush 70-hectare Maruyama Park is a shrine that serves to protect Hokkaido. It began with the enshrining of Shinto deities in 1869, by an order of the Emperor Meiji, to protect the development of Hokkaido, and due to its presence as a guardian for Hokkaido it continues to draw visitors from all regions. From late April to early May, you can experience a classic Japanese spring time scene as the park is bathed in the subtle pink hue of 1,100 cherry trees blooming simultaneously.
